

Gabriel International

Social responsibility and sustainability

Introduction

Gabriel International takes her social responsibility and her concern about protecting the environment very serious. In this matter we divert from oil companies which main focus is shareholder value and only take other shareholders (local people, environment) in account when forced by legislation. Gabriel takes all the stakeholders into account and finds a balance between their wishes and demands .

Employees

Starting point for Gabriel is recruiting her employees in the surrounding area of the location of the projects. In Iraq, for instance, the protection unit for the security of the oilfields will be staffed from local tribes, although trained by the American armed forces. Also the operators, administrative personnel, logistics etc for the operations of the fields will be staffed with local inhabitants. Training programs will be setup to educate the employees thus giving them prospective and outlook on prosperity.

Local governments

Gabriel sets up joint ventures, according to the PPP (Public Private Partnership) model, with the local government for the development and operations of the oil and gas fields. In these joint ventures funds are raised which will be used for post conflict reconstruction and structure development of the region. Next to infrastructural projects as building bridges, roads etc there is a high demand for electricity (development of power plants) and clean water. But also economic growth by the development of an agricultural sector, telecom and other projects will be initiated and funded in cooperation with the local government. The strategic resources and revenues from the oil and gas projects shall act as collateral and redemption of the loans

Environment

Gabriel is very much aware of the fact that exploiting fossil fuels leaves a CO2 footprint and encumber the environment. However, natural gas that is released will be used to generate electricity, one of the basic needs of local governments. The emissions from this process, CO2, will be led back into the oilfield thus enabling heavy crude oil to be extracted more easily. This process reduces the total emission of CO2. Next to that the natural gas can be liquefied (LNG) and can be exported to customers outside the region.

Gabriel International

Contribution to the refugee issues in Europe

Especially in Iraq Gabriel brings a significant contribution to the return of refugees to their region. By granting safety in the region by means of oil protection groups consisting of local fighters, we can release funds in cooperation with the local government for the post conflict reconstruction of the region after liberation from ISIL so enabling a safe situation for refugees to return home. In this post conflict reconstruction (social) housing, hospitals and other common facilities will be rebuild. In cooperation with the local government economic framework projects will be established, like agricultural and livestock farming projects to produce fresh products which are mainly imported at the moment. By creating jobs, training programs and education in general a future prospective is given so promoting the return of refugees to their country of origin.

Grants

Large sums of grants are available from the European Union and the United States for reconstruction en development of the affected areas. By means of the PPP, Gabriel generates, in cooperation with the local authorities, a platform for projects funded by these grants. These projects will completely benefit the local population.

Checking on officials tells us that specific projects for these grants are often absent so the grants remain unused

Synergy

By deployment of all these components in the right way synergy occurs, the sum is larger than the addition of the sole components. Especially the control and guidance of this synergy is the base for successful projects in the region.
